The next morning, a police car arrives at the Blue Lake Cabins. The policemen tell Wilma about Eddie.

The young man is dead. An accident in the rain. It's a dangerous road.

Bring his things to us later today.

OK.

Wilma tells Cal Dexter about Mr Collins.

That's bad...

But can I move into Mr Collins' cabin?

That's OK. I got $200 for my story!

OK, but it's another twenty dollars a week.

Wilma goes to Eddie's cabin. She puts his things in his bag.

Can I move in now?

Yes, it's ready now.

What—?

Money! Lots of it!
Later that day, Wilma gets ready to take Eddie's things to the police.

What's this?

Can I come in? I need to look for something.

What are you looking for?

I - er, it's not important.

The Red Mask Gang! Mr Collins!

Where's the money?

Does she know about the money?

Is some of the bank money in Mr Collins' cabin?

I must find the money before Mr Dexter takes it.
Wilma can't sleep. She goes for a walk by the lake.

Has Dexter got the money?

So Dexter has got the money! What's he going to do with it?

Three thousand dollars! Do I take it to the police? Or tell Wilma Pinch? No, not Wilma. I need to think about this.

It's the money from the bank robbery. But how do I get it?

In a different town, Joe and Blanche are listening to the news. It is about a car accident near the Blue Lake Cabins.

... police are trying to find out about the dead man. His name is Edward Collins. He is about twenty years old, tall with red hair ...

Eddie!

Yes! But what about the money?

Maybe the police don't know where it is.

We must drive up to the Blue Lake Cabins today.
That afternoon, Cal goes out onto the lake.

Now is a good time to look for the money.

Mr Dexter is going to look for the money when he gets back. I can take it later. But what do I do about Mr Dexter?

The money!

Later that day...

We want to rent a cabin.

There's one near the lake. It's expensive.

A young man with money! That's interesting.

That's OK.

Joe asks Wilma about Edward Collins.

A friend of yours?

Yeah, a good friend...

Can we have his cabin?

Sorry, Mr Dexter's got it now.
Who is this man Dexter?

He's a writer. He's out on the lake.

We need to talk to Dexter.

What about Wilma Pinch? Maybe she has the money.

Maybe. But first we talk to Dexter.

Hi. Are you the writer?

Yeah, that's me.

I'm Blanche, this is Joe. I write stories sometimes.

Maybe you can help me?

OK, come to my cabin for a drink this evening.

Half an hour later, they go down to the lake.

Late that evening, Wilma walks across to Cal's car.

Wilma knows about cars — and about car brakes.
In Cal's cabin, Cal shows Blanche his new story. Joe is thinking about Eddie's share of the money.

Has he got it? It's time to see.

We want the money, Cal. Eddie's money.

Wh - what money? Who is Eddie?

Three thousand dollars. And you're going to give it to us.

OK, OK!

It's all here, Joe.

When Dexter goes into town, there's going to be an accident. Then I can take the money.

It's time for us to go, Cal. Maybe you can write a story about this!

We can be in the town by midnight.
